The Landscape represents natural and rural landscapes through simplified graphic signs and surfaces reinterpreted by humans throughout successive interventions that, over the years, have defined the identity of the geographies of the “origins.”

The “Landscape” rug series concept is inspired by travel notes and aerial views of cultivated fields, particularly those in Southeast Asia. The project takes shape through chromatic contrasts, volumes that outline, and irregular shapes, inviting to reflect on the coexistence of man and nature. It recalls the traditional aesthetics of landscapes on the outskirts of cities and the contrast between the pace of modernity and the slower rhythm of places that remain anthropological and humanized and that we sometimes dream of re-inhabiting.

The hand-tufted Landscape rug series consists of rugs with irregular, never identical edges; the unique shapes blend into a perfect ecosystem with the furniture elements, transforming the rug into a true point of convergence, harmony, and elegance.
